ELLWELL COMMITTED TO JAIL. He is Charged with Defrauding His Landlady. K. W. Ellwell was arrested yesterday on a warrant issued at Alderman W. S. Miller's office at the instance of Mrs. Sarah L. Mee, who lives in the Seventh ward. Ellwell was accused of attempting to surreptitiously remove his goods from a house of Mrs. Mee's, in which he was living, and under cover of darkness, thus trying to defraud her of her rent. He was sent to the county jail in a fault of $500 bail and will there await trial. Mrs. Mee claimed that some time ago Ellwell rented the house and signed a lease. He became a tenant for three months' rent and Monday he moved out with all his baggage and hence the warrant and arrest.

TO ADVERTISE FOR BIDS. Mayor Signed Mr. O'Boyle's Resolution Yesterday. Mayor Moir yesterday signed the resolution directing the city clerk to advertise for bids for the electric lighting of the city, and Mr. Lavelle will proceed to advertise at once. Councilman O'Boyle, the father of the resolution, stated yesterday that he believed when the bids were opened it would be found that the city can be lighted for one-third less than the cost it is paying now. One feature of the specifications as called for in the resolution provides that wires be strung fifteen inches apart. Mr. O'Boyle is especially interested regarding this, inasmuch as his son was killed last summer by falling from an electric light pole. In his death, Mr. O'Boyle claims, was caused by his receiving a shock by coming in contact with wires strung too closely together.

LIBRARY IS DESERTED. It Was a Lonesome Place Yesterday. Only a Few Callers for Books. Many in Reading Rooms. The Albright library was a lonesome place yesterday. There was an air of depression over everything. There was also an air of formaldehyde, which was equally bad. If not worse, it was a strongly unhealthy odor which made the visitor desire to beat a hasty retreat as if it were labeled diphtheria or scarlet fever. No books were being taken out and few people seemed to be returning any. The reading rooms were well filled, and there was a succession of visitors who asked innumerable questions and who seemed to feel deeply afflicted because they were not to be allowed to carry away books. "How on earth shall I ever study up my subject for Chautauqua tonight?" asked one girl in dismay. "I can't come down here unless at 8 o'clock in the morning and then the library isn't open." Another patron lamented her fate in not being able to carry home books to relieve the tedious hours of an invalid aunt, and a young girl implored an attendant to let her take out just one volume of history, which she needed for study. "I know it hasn't had the scarlet fever," she explained earnestly, "because nobody wants to read it but me, and I wouldn't if I didn't just have to look up something for examination." The only person who seemed to derive a certain satisfaction from the catastrophe was a small boy, who openly expressed his hilarity at being thus unable to write a much dreaded composition. The reading rooms are open as usual, but all books now are under the quarantine of the circulating department will be taken below stairs, where arrangements will be made for fumigation. Librarian Carr says that in his twenty years' experience in library work never but once has such a stop been declared on the books. It was in St. Joseph, Mo., where for a period of ten days people were forbidden to congregate in churches, schools or elsewhere, the action being taken to prevent such assemblage and the possibility of disseminating disease, rather than the fear of contagion through books. The attendants find their usual occupation gone to a great extent, but are extremely busy with catalogues and regular desk work, which always accumulates. It is proposed to take account of stock during the cessation of circulation. There is no intention as to how long the quarantine will be enforced.

DIDN'T LIKE THE PHONE. Louis Franz Accused of Assaulting John C. Young. Louis Franz, of 836 Maple street, was yesterday arraigned before Alderman John T. Howe, charged with malicious mischief and assault and battery, by John C. Young. Franz lives at the above number, and recently rented a small portion of the front part of the house to Young, as a printing shop. All went well until Franz discovered, Monday, that Young had had a telephone put in the place. This, for some unknown reason, roused Franz's ire, and going into the place, Monday night, he snatched the telephone, broke the battery, and on Young's objecting to the proceedings, assaulted him. Franz was held in $500 bail.

Roberts last night held an inquest at O'Brien's hotel, Oliphant, to inquire into the causes of the death of Byron Palmer, found dead last week near Oliphant. Although the circumstances surrounding the case were rather odd, still there were no evidences of foul play and the jury gave as its verdict that he had come to his death from exposure.

DEATH OF JUDGE F. W. GUNSTER. CANCER OF THE NECK CAUSED HIS DEMISE. He Had Been Suffering for Four Months and for Some Time Past His Family Had Knowledge of the Fact That He Could Not Recover. The End Came Yesterday Afternoon, Shortly Before 3 O'clock. Sketch of the Busy, Useful Career of the Deceased. Hon. Frederick W. Gunster, the senior additional law judge of Lackawanna county, died yesterday afternoon at 2:45 o'clock at his home, 624 Monroe avenue. Death was due to cancer of the neck, from which he had suffered for more than four months. Around his bedside at the moment of final dissolution were his wife and children and his brothers, also his brother-in-law, Rev. William Brehl, of Pittston. Although he had suffered great pain during his illness, his death was mercifully painless. For more than a week the stricken jurist had been in a critical condition, but he passed a good day Monday and his friends were hopeful that he would live for some time. About 3 o'clock yesterday morning there was a sudden change for the worse and he began to choke and found difficulty in breathing. Dr. F. F. Gunster, his brother and one of his attending physicians, was hastily summoned, but when he arrived the spasm of pain had passed away and the patient was again resting easily. At the same time that Dr. Gunster was summoned a message was sent to the episcopal residence and in response to it Rev. D. J. MacGouldrick hastened to Judge Gunster's bedside. He administered to him the last sacraments of the Catholic church in preparation for death.

APPROACH OF THE END. Yesterday Judge Gunster gradually sank into a semi-unconscious state, and did not again rally. Gradually and peacefully his life slipped away and shortly before 3 o'clock in the afternoon came the event that had for months been dreaded, but forseen in his household. About four months ago the cancer which ended Judge Gunster's life made its appearance and for two months thereafter he suffered terrible pain. In the meantime he had consulted the most famous specialists with reference to that disease and they informed him that his malady was incurable. His last appearance on the bench was in Argument court, and for two months beginning October 24, and the last opinions he wrote were handed down from him by Judge Edwards on December 18. They were in the cases of Grey and others against McCormack, Rorrick against McManamin and City of Scranton against Alexander Gillet.

FUNERAL SATURDAY. The funeral will take place Saturday morning. A requiem mass will be celebrated in St. Peter's cathedral, and interment will be made in St. Mary's German Catholic cemetery at Petersburgh, where the parents of Judge and Mrs. Gunster and Judge Gunster's mother lie buried. The news of Judge Gunster's death did not reach the court house until a few minutes after court had adjourned and therefore no formal action was taken further than to run the flag over the court house at half-mast. This morning after court opens it will adjourn out of respect to the deceased member of the court, and at 11 o'clock a meeting of the Bar association will be held, at which suitable action will be taken.

PURE MINDED MAN. No pure-minded man ever possessed the scales of justice. His governing desire was to see right prevail. He detested only what was false and insincere. He loved his profession and was happy when he saw truth prevail. He was a man of great learning and adorned by extensive reading of master authors. It was respectful, analytical, logical. Yet his great personal characteristics were his great intense sincerity, which thrilled his splendid voice and was visible upon every feature of his intellectual face. Nature did not only endow him with the attribute of believing what he said, but he was also a man of noble and noble communicating the same belief to those whom he addressed. When he gave much thought to a subject, or carefully arranged an argument, it was a treat to listen to him. He was no less thorough than skillful. He said nothing that should have been left unsaid and unsaid nothing that should have been said. His public was ever estimated in his community. Those who knew him best revered him.

GOEBEL WAS BORN IN CARBONDALE. FAMILY IS REMEMBERED BY MANY SCRANTONIANS. After Leaving This City the Goebel Family Moved to Overton, Bradford County, Where They Were Neighbors of the Family of Colonel Herman Osthaus—Nothing Remarkable About His Youth—Col. F. J. Fitzsimmons Met Goebel in Louisville Last October. William Goebel, leader of the Democratic party of Kentucky and its candidate for governor at the last election, who was shot and fatally injured at Frankfort, Ky., yesterday, was born at Carbondale and has relatives residing in that city. There are many former residents of Carbondale now in Scranton who remember the Goebel family. Goebel's father was Frederick Goebel, a native of Hanover, Germany. He was a carpenter and joiner by trade, but was also a musician and for several years was the leader of the only brass band in Carbondale could boast of at the time. John Murran is now the only resident of Carbondale who was a member of that band. About the year 1850, when William was only a few years old, the family moved from Carbondale to Overton, Bradford county, where they resided on a place adjoining that of the father of Colonel Herman Osthaus, of this city. The father of Colonel Osthaus and the senior Goebel came from the same region in Germany, and thus the intimacy between the two neighbors had a stronger tie. The senator's father, during the period of the Civil war, constructed a house for the Osthaus family. Afterward he moved to Covington, Ky., where he engaged in the meat business. The Goebels have been residents of Kentucky since. There was no indication in the senator's youth that he would achieve the prominence which has attended his later career, but he came from a fighting stock in one sense, as his father and uncle had served in the German army. Colonel Osthaus always watched his progress with interest, and is of the opinion that to a great degree the savage attacks made upon Senator Goebel have been malicious, as the results of mere factional feeling.

ORGANIZER OF BANKS. He was one of the organizers of the Third National bank and served as one of the directors until he was elected judge. He was also one of the board of trustees of the Lackawanna hospital, has served as a director of the oral school and was also a trustee of the Albright library. Fraternally, he was an active member of the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks, a civil and equity judge. Judge Gunster held high rank, being considered one of the ablest in the state. His knowledge of law was wonderful, not only in its vast range, but also in its peculiar thoroughness. In his disposition of criminal cases, it is said, he was in leaning too much toward mercy. The judge presented a striking personal appearance in his younger years, being over six feet tall and as straight as the proverbial arrow, and even in later years he was almost as erect in bearing. He was a great student, was master of several foreign languages and impressed every one who came in contact with him by his uniformly courteous manner and unflinching temperament. In conclusion let it be said that in the death of Judge Gunster Scranton has lost a great and patriotic citizen and last and most important of all, an honest man.

A LIVELY RUNAWAY. Horse Owned by Thomas Bayless Made Things Hum Yesterday. A horse attached to a single wagon owned by Thomas Bayless, a huckster, living in Lincoln Heights, ran away yesterday afternoon and made things lively for a few minutes. The animal was standing in front of one of the wholesale houses on lower Lackawanna avenue, when it became startled and dashed up the street. After several narrow escapes from collisions, the horse turned into Penn avenue and near the centre of the block was caught by Jack Phelan. The animal reared and plunged, throwing Mr. Phelan to the ground. The wagon wheels passed over his body, but as the wagon contained no load, he was only badly bruised. He was attended by Dr. Longstreet. The horse was finally stopped at the corner of Linden street, and Patrolman May took it to Belles' livery stable.

SPECIAL COMMITTEE INVESTIGATED IT YESTERDAY. The special conference committee, to whom the claim of M. M. Ruddy against the city was left, met yesterday afternoon in the city solicitor's office and formulated a report for presentation to both branches of council. Mr. Ruddy claims damages accruing from the lowering of the sidewalk in front of his property. He originally claimed $600 and was awarded $450 by a referee, but this award was set aside by court. He is now willing to compromise for $300, but there is a question whether the committee will allow him anything.

Ward & Mahon until the former was elected recorder of the mayor's court of Scranton. The latter was in 1872 Judge Gunster then formed a law partnership with Charles H. Welles and continued in that connection until 1888. In the fall of 1874 he was elected to the assembly on the Democratic ticket and served in 1875-76. He was very active in securing the passage of the new county bill separating Lackawanna from Luzerne, but the bill was twice defeated in the senate while he served in the lower house. After retiring from the assembly, however, he returned the next year and went materially assistance in getting the measure through the legislature. When the new county was organized he was appointed the first district attorney by Governor Hartranft and served with credit in that capacity for one year and three months. On Aug. 14, 1888, he received the unanimous nomination of the Democratic party for the position of additional law judge of Lackawanna county and the Republican county convention gave him an endorsement by refusing to nominate for Carbondale to Overton, Bradford county, where they resided on a place adjoining that of the father of Colonel Herman Osthaus, of this city. The father of Colonel Osthaus and the senior Goebel came from the same region in Germany, and thus the intimacy between the two neighbors had a stronger tie.
